Cuba Asking Seized Plane Be Protected

By GEORGE KAUFMAN

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—The Cuban government today planned to demand special protection for Cuban airliners and passengers in the United States as the result of rebel seizure of a plane which crashed and killed 17 persons.

The three survivors said four Cuban rebels commandeered the big Viscount turbo prop airliner Saturday night on a flight from Miami to Varadero Beach, 87 miles east of Havana.

The wreckage was spotted Sunday in shallow waters of the Bay of Nipe near Preston, in rebel-infested Oriente Province.

The Cubana Airline said Fidel Castro rebels seized the plane to make headlines for their movement on the eve of the Cuban national election today but they caused it to crash when they forced the pilot to attempt a landing in darkness on an airstrip that was too small.

Those killed were the four gunmen, the four Cuban crew members, three other Cubans and six naturalized Americans born in Cuba.

The plane was the second seized in flight since Oct. 21. On that date, an authoritative source said, two rebels among the passengers seized a DC3 with 12 other persons aboard on a domestic flight from Cayo Mambi to Man Bay.

The rebels shot that pilot in the arm and forced him to divert the flight to Cananave. The crew of three and a Cuban soldier passengers were reported still held by the rebels, but the other eight passengers were allowed to return to their homes.

A spokesman for the Cuban Foreign Ministry said as a result of the capture of the four-engined Viscount Saturday, the Cuban government "will ask of the United States the due protection in American airports of all Cuban airplanes, their crews and passengers."

NAACP Calls Faubus a Valuable Foe

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—About 1,500 Arkansas Negroes thundered agreement yesterday when a high official of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People called Gov. Orval E. Faubus a "valuable enemy."

"I trust he stays healthy and active, coming out of the odd-numbered days with new plans to replace those which did not work on the even-numbered days," said Roy Wilkins of New York, NAACP executive secretary.

Wilkins visiting Little Rock for the first time since the outbreak of the federal-state school integration struggle here, addressed his organization's 14th annual state convention.

"Victory is near at hand," asserted Wilkins, in a fiery speech designed to launch a statewide NAACP membership drive. Repeatedly, he was interrupted by applause from the crowd which jammed a big, city-owned community center—built especially for use by Negroes.

Wilkins urged Little Rock Negroes to stand fast in their fight for integrated schools, and rejected any suggestion that they open private schools of their own. He referred to the establishment of private segregated schools to replace the public high schools closed by Faubus to avoid integration. The new private schools here are for white students only; none has been opened for displaced Negro students.

"I know it is hard to watch some of the white students getting some little education while your own high school students are shut out of school by your governor," But, Wilkins continued, "the segregationists have set up their temporary schools to defy the law, also."

Wilkins promised new, undisclosed legal moves in the Little Rock dispute. And he predicted that soon "sober people" would demand that their closed schools be reopened.

"It is conceivable," he said, "that if the states chose to deny everyone an education rather than give up segregation, the federal government will find a way to fill the breach."

Here, the NAACP executive left no doubt that he meant possible operation of public schools by the federal government. "Our constitutional history has shown that where the states fail the people, the federal government must act in the general welfare," Wilkins said. "The general welfare certainly requires, in this day and time, the best possible education for all our children."

Turning to the Arkansas governor, Wilkins said "I regard Gov. Faubus as a valuable enemy. He has aided in many ways in clarifying the issue of segregation."

Wilkins said Faubus had helped the NAACP's cause by: 1. Disposing effectively of the interposition proposal when he used state troops to keep Negro children out of Little Rock Central High School and did not succeed. 2. Arousing to the NAACP's point of view millions of people in America and abroad who had little or no feeling on the racial issue. 3. Firing the enthusiasm of people who believe in integration.

Mrs. Edwin Ward reported on the week of prayer which was held last week. A most inspiring devotional was given by Mrs. L. L. Ball on "Grace of God: Will."

Mrs. George Newbern was in charge of the program and presented an article on "The Art of Living." She was assisted by Mrs. Joe Lawrence who spoke on Christian adventure in the 49th state. A dessert plate with coffee was served to the 15 members.

DOROTHY DIX

Are Thrills and Chills a Key to Real Love

Dear Dorothy Dix:

You often say that thrills and chills aren't essential to true love. I'd like to go along with that. I once had the same problem. I was engaged to a wonderful boy but he didn't bring the glow that came when I saw Tab Hunter or Tony Curtis. I reasoned, therefore, that I didn't really love him and broke the engagement. He married some one else and ten years later I'm still waiting for the stars to fall. I realize, too, that I really loved this boy and made the big mistake of my life in not marrying him. — N. Y.

Dear Dorothy Dix:

Love comes to different people in different ways. Sometimes it is accompanied by ringing bells and blazing fireworks but just as often it sneaks into our lives with nothing more tempestuous than a warm glow. It's a wise (and lucky) person who can pick the real thing—and the right mate.

Dear Dorothy Dix:

A few weeks ago I met a very shy boy. I like him very much but am stumped on the question of giving them a "human image" in the nine Negro students who, despite segregationist opposition, attended Central High School under protection of federal troops.

4. Forcing, the Sept. 29 ruling of the U. S. Supreme Court, thus blocking others from even temporary success should they try similar tactics. On Sept. 29, the high tribunal refused to give Little Rock a breathing spell from integration.

5. Causing a temporary federal court ruling against leasing of public schools for use as private segregated institutions.

"The price being paid for refusing to accept Negro students in desegregated high schools has been the closing of the schools," Wilkins said. "The price is too high."

of getting him to ask for a date. He's friendly when we meet but doesn't say much. — Pat.

Dear Pat: Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet "The Shy Beau." Be very friendly when you see him, grab the first opportunity to invite him to something—a record session at your house, a dance at school, or a play to which you just happen to have an extra ticket (even if it cost most of last week's allowance). Truly shy people are completely won by a few very friendly overtures.

Dear Dorothy Dix:

Recently we acquired new neighbors, who seemed like very nice people. They called and asked us over to a barbecue one day—I was to get a baby sitter. I turned the invitation down. If they don't want our baby (a darling 15 month old girl) they can't have us. Was I right? — Nan.

Dear Nan: If you want to cut your visiting list down to nothing flat, you're on the right track. You are much too quick to take offense where no slight is intended. Your neighbors were having a strictly adult party and simply felt it was not an occasion for children.

Dear Dorothy Dix:

I'm a high school senior faced with a difficult problem in one of my classes. While I don't pretend to know everything about the English language, my English teacher often makes serious mistakes in our lessons. I've corrected her at times but she pays no attention to me and the other kids think I'm just showing off. Shall I stick up for what I know is right or go along with what she says? — Puzzled Student.

Dear P. S.: Constant correction of her mistakes will only lead to very bad feelings between you, the faculty and the other students, particularly since you are a new girl

Managing Editor of Ark. Democrat Dies

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Edwin J. Liske, 63, managing editor of the Arkansas Democrat, died at a Little Rock hospital today after an illness of several weeks. He suffered from a heart condition.

A native of North Little Rock, Liske was a graduate of the University of Arkansas and the Arkansas Law School. He started in journalism as a reporter for the Arkansas Gazette prior to World War I and later worked for the St. Louis Star-Times.

Liske joined the news staff of the Democrat here in 1916. Except for military service in World War I and a year as an Associated Press newsmen at Memphis in the early 1920s, his association with the Democrat continued until his death.

He was promoted to news editor of the Democrat in 1926 and appointed managing editor in 1940. Liske was a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Pat Harding of Little Rock; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Liske of North Little Rock, and two grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Wide Car May Cost the Owner Extra

NEW YORK (AP)—Owners of longer and wider 1939 cars will be charged 15 to 30 per cent more to park them in some city garages.

"The decision to boost rates for larger cars was reached at a meeting of the executive board of the Metropolitan Garage Board of Trade."

The board said a lower rate of increase will apply to regular customers, while transients will pay the higher rate.

Monthly rates now range from $22 to $95.

Fellow Wasn't Kidding About That Bear

MEMPHIS (AP)—The Humane Shelter telephone rang and an excited voice shouted: "Come and get this bear down off my roof!"

Harry Wolff wasn't kidding.

Shelter and zoo employees plus two dozen cops armed with rifles and shotguns rushed to the Wolff residence. There, perched on the rooftop, was a shaggy 400 pound bear.

After two hours of maneuvering, a zoo attendant finally lassoed the bruin and hustled him off to the zoo.

Wolff said he first saw the animal yesterday afternoon when he booted from the Wolff garage, climbed a tree and leaped atop the roof.

"There's no telling where that bear came from," a zoo worker said. "He's well fed—at least as a bull-terrier. Could have hurt someone at the school. They have apparently gotten along with her for a long time and won't change on your say-so. Discuss the problem with your parents who could bring it to the attention of the school board if they think a protest is justified.

U. S. Trying to Pin Plane Responsibility

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is trying to find out whether the Cuban rebel movement was responsible for the hijacking Saturday of a Miami-to-Cuba airliner. The plane crashed killing 17, including 6 U.S. citizens.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said the U.S. Embassy at Havana has sent an officer to the site of the crash to make an investigation.

White House Aides Take Oath Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two key White House aides, Gerald R. Morgan and David W. Randall, were sworn into office today. Morgan took over as the President's principal deputy assistant. Randall was sworn in as Eisenhower's special counsel, a job Morgan had held previously.

The new assignments for Morgan and Randall result from the resignation of Sherman Adams as Eisenhower's chief aide.

The Adams job now is filled by Wilton B. Persons.

Strike Against Airline Delayed

NEW YORK (AP)—Eastern Air Lines announced today that a machinists' strike scheduled against it for midnight tonight had been postponed.

An airline spokesman said the union involved had postponed the walkout to permit it to further consider the company's latest offer.

Six major airlines had agreed to share the financial burdens of a walkout hitting any one of them. They are American, Trans World Airways, Pan American, Eastern and Capital Airlines.

Governor to Spend Little Time in Office

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Birding and horse development, Gov. Orval E. Faubus will spend little time in his office here this week. His aides said the governor will remain in his home town of Huntsville today and tomorrow, and will badly."

Several sections of Arkansas had bear scares recently. At Jonesboro, bruins paid visits to residential neighborhoods on two consecutive days. Other bears were seen near Hoxie, Paragould and Crosscut.

Believes Hope Will Defeat Conway 28-14

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The football week ending Oct. 31 was one to strengthen the heart of a fumbling football fan. Except for the Hot Springs-Blytheville upset we hit all the major games. But success does not carry confidence into this week's slate. One game alone — Little Rock Central at North Little Rock — packs enough shudders for a week of horror movies.

So we'll jump blindly into that one and let the others fall where they may.

North Little Rock 21, Central 18: Yes, that's the way we see it. If for no other reason than that the Wildcats have the "flavor" on the Northside field for the first time in history. Further, North Little Rock has been eyeing this one for weeks while Central has been eyeing its roster to see if there were enough boys left to play.

Little Rock 33, Subino 7: Anyway you look at it, it stacks up as No. 8 for the inspired Warriors.

El Dorado 33, Blytheville 12: It's too much to expect a doughty band of Chicks to pull off a second straight shocking upset. El Dorado's got the No. 1 position in the state to protect.

Fort Smith 25, Hot Springs 18: The Grizzlies have been coming like seven since an early loss to El Dorado. Hot Springs is due some improvement from last week's showing but it will need luck and improvement to sidetrack the Fort Smith express.

Pine Bluff 21, Texarkana 14: Two weeks ago we'd have picked this the other way. After the Fort Smith game, we said the Razorbacks couldn't be that bad. Then came El Dorado and we started wondering. The Zbras are beating no words, but they have the home field advantage.

Hope 28, Conway 14: The Bobcats get another chance to prove why they're the top-rated Class AA team in the state.

And quickly:

Silam Springs over Harrison, Rogers over Berryville, Joplin, Mo., over Springfield, Van Buren over Huntsville, Forrest City over Jonesboro, West Memphis over Helena, Newport over Wynne, Marianna over Stuttgart.

And further:

Malvern over Benton, Little Rock Catholic over Russellville, Jacksonville over Searcy, Morrilton over Mabelvale, Camden over Smackover, De Queen over Conway, Fairview and Gurdon over Magnolia.

LSU Continues to Cling to Top Football Spot

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Louisiana State, Iowa and Army held their places on top of the weekly Associated Press football ranking poll today, but after that it was a case of anything — and anyone — goes.

Ohio State and Colorado went clear out of the top 10 after last Saturday's lunking. Auburn, barely victorious, went down a notch to make room for astounding Northwestern, Mississippi, after losing for the first time, dropped three places.

LSU, one of two unbeaten and untied major college teams, maintained its slender lead over once-tied Iowa in the balloting of 165 sports writers and broadcasters, by a margin of 1,443 points to 1,379. The Tigers from Louisiana drew 82 first-place votes and Iowa's Hawkeyes 54.

Army, the leader two weeks ago before it was tied by Pittsburgh, was named first on only seven ballots, but piled up 1,105 points for third place.

The first three places continued to reflect the results. LSU conquered Mississippi, 14-0 in their struggle for the Southeastern Conference lead. Iowa routed Michigan 37-14 and Army ran over Baylor 37-0.

An even sharper reflection of results came Northwestern fourth place by a bare three points over who had dropped out of the top 10 after losing to Iowa, beat Ohio State for the first time in 10 years, 21-0. Auburn just scratched out a 6-5 decision over Florida.

Ohio State, rated fifth a week ago, dropped clear to 16th after its defeat. Mississippi dropped from sixth to ninth after losing to the leaders. Colorado, a 23-7 victim of Oklahoma, fell from ninth in the rankings clear out of sight.

As a result Oklahoma, Wisconsin, Purdue, Mississippi and the unbeaten Air Force Academy team filled the last five places in the top 10.

The top 10, with first-place votes in parentheses:

1. Louisiana State (1443)	11. Iowa (54)
2. Army (1105)	12. Tennessee (51)
3. LSU (1379)	13. Northwestern (412)
4. Michigan (812)	14. Mississippi (373)

Mental Lapse Is Feared by Porker Coach

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Coach Frank Broyles today worked against a possible "mental letdown" by the Arkansas Razorback football team.

Broyles said he feared a drop from the spirited play which last Saturday led to the Porkers' first victory of the season — a 21-3 lacing of Texas A&M in a Southwest Conference clash at College Station.

The team previously had lost six games this season.

Against Hardin — Simmons in Little Rock this weekend, Broyles said, "I hope we can play the same type of determined football

Upsets Mean Bad Monday Practices

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Someone once said, "The worst thing about being upset on Saturday is next Monday's practice."

Monday is always a day for rectifying mistakes — generally without pads — but when you have to face the ones you weren't supposed to make then it becomes downright uncomfortable.

Ask Texas A&M. The Aggies took a 21-8 lacing from hitherto winless Arkansas last Saturday night in a 5 o'clock west conference game. Monday, they put on full practice gear for a night session. The Aggies' meel upcoming Southern Methodist and its star passer Don Meredith Saturday.

The Aggies also counted tri-captain Rich Gay, their blocking back, out for the season with a knee injury. End Travis Nevill will miss the SMU game, also with a knee injury.

Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes, not accustomed to losing, had his Buckeyes out for a full workout, following the 21-0 loss to Northwestern, their first Big Ten loss in 20 games. Hayes replaced 209-pound Oscar Hauser with senior Danny James. Hauser, a soph, had the most playing time on the Bucks' squad.

Houston's Hal Lahar also shook up his squad, after the Cougars lost 25-20 to Tulsa in a Missouri Valley game. He named 10 changes in playing personnel, six on the first team.

Houston also lost its No. 1 ground-gainer, Don Brown, with a cracked elbow bone.

Injuries rocked another upset victim, Pitt, 10-13 loser to Syracuse, had quarterback Bill Kallden out with a charley horse, halfback Dick Haley suffering from a twisted knee and tackle Ken Montanari under observation for a possible head injury.

All are expected to be ready for Notre Dame Saturday.

South Carolina, which lost 10-14 to Maryland in an Atlantic Coast Conference game Saturday, went through offensive and defensive contact drills, with special emphasis on punting, pass defense and pass protection.

Minnesota lost two more voters for its game Saturday with Big Ten leader Iowa. Left end Perry Gehring and tackle Norm Sixt join the list of teammates that have left the Gophers, a 6-0 victim of Indiana last week.

Harvard, 19-6 lower to Penn, watched films of the game, with an extended skull session, looked on. Quarterback Charley Ravenel, shaken up against the Quakers, was pronounced fit for Princeton Saturday.

Giants Put End to Theory About Brown

By MIKE BATHET

How did the New York Giants put an end to the growing myth that Cleveland was incoherent and Jimmy Brown superhuman?

Chuck Connors pitched and Sam Huff caught. It was that simple.

And what did Huff catch two touchdowns of Jimmy Brown?

Batista's Pick Assured a Cuban Victory

By LARRY ALLEN

HAVANA (P)—Former Premier Andres Rivero Aguero has won election by a wide margin to succeed his political sponsor, President Fulgencio Batista, in complete returns showed today.

A light turnout and bloodshed marked the heavily guarded balloting in the revolt-torn nation Monday, but lopsided early figures from the four-man race indicated a landslide for Rivero Aguero.

Unofficial tabulations from 3,717 — or 43 per cent — of the island's 8,521 precincts gave: Rivero Aguero 439,991 votes; Carlos Marquez Sterling 100,528; former President Ramon Gau San Martin 88,649; Alberto Salas Amaro 7,754.

Returns were lacking on other races. But government quarters expressed belief most of their candidates for the Senate, House, six governorships and 128 mayoralties were being swept into office with Rivero Aguero.

Hundreds of thousands of the nation's 2,870,000 eligible voters — perhaps as many as 60 per cent — stayed away from the polls. Apathy and fear were factors.

Rebel leader Fidel Castro had called to rally during the campaign, Castro threatened death to all other candidates and reprisals against Cubans who voted.

Government sources predicted, however, that final returns would show about 65 per cent had disregarded Castro's warnings and voted.

Election day bloodshed included a mistaken exchange of fire between troops and a police patrol near Mariel, the national military headquarters. Soldiers shot at the police under the impression they were rebels. One man was killed.

A rebel suspect was killed by police fire in Havana.

Two gunmen fired from a car at the home of Vice President Rafael Gaus Inician. One was captured. The vice president was not at home.

Two soldiers guarding a polling place in western Del Rio province were wounded by gunfire. A political agent and a bus driver were shot dead.

Rivero Aguero is pledged to carry on the policies of Batista, who has dominated Cuban politics oddadon for a quarter century.

Batista's four-year presidential term ends next Feb. 24.

Steele School Safe But Can't Open It

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—A safe was stolen from the high school at Mount Holly, about 15 miles west of El Dorado, early today, but the thieves abandoned the still-locked strongbox.

Authorities said a school official saw three men loading the safe into their automobile which it later developed had been stolen.

He gave chase in his car and eventually the burglars abandoned their automobile and safe and fled into the woods.

Six men were arrested later for investigation in the burglary. All were held on open charges.

The automobile was the property of Billy Martin of Smackover. It was stolen from a parking place here last night.

Body of Baby Found in Bayou

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—The body of a new-born white baby girl was found in a bayou near Sherrill Sunday, the sheriff's office reported today.

Deputies said the body was partially covered by a plastic bag and a steel bar was nearby. They theorized that the body might have been placed in the bog and weighed down by the bar before being dropped into the stream.

Dr. Frank Street, coroner, said the child was full term and apparently had lived after birth. He said the body apparently had been in the water from two to four days.

Police Patrol as Cubans Hold Election

By LARRY ALLEN

HAVANA (P)—Cubans by the tens of thousands stayed away from the ballot boxes this morning in the presidential election. They could be boycotting the vote or avoiding it because of rebel threats of violence. Or they could be waiting until afternoon.

There were only clusters of 10 to 50 voters at key polling places in this capital four hours after the voting began. Reports from the provinces said voting was light or moderate.

Government sources predicted the voting would pick up during the afternoon hours. That has been the past pattern in Cuba.

A cry of fraud came from rebel leader Fidel Castro even before the first ballot was cast. The rebels, who have warned Cubans to boycott the election at the risk of being slain, charged in a broadcast that the results already been prepared in army barracks. Brig. Gen. Fulgencio Batista has always had the backing of the Cuban army.

The voting took place under the shadow of guns. The nation's 34,000-strong armed forces were mobilized, held in barracks but ready to move quickly in the event of a rebel uprising.

Clusters of police armed with automatic pistols, rifles and truncheons guarded the nation's 8,521 precincts.

No reports of disorder in Havana were heard in the early hours.

In the easternmost Oriente, the center of the revolution, rebels intensified shooting attacks on highway and rail transport. There were some clashes with government troops.

Batista's candidate for president, former Premier Andrew Rivero Aguiar, was generally expected to win. The opposition is divided among three candidates—former President Ramon Grau San Marin, Carlos Marguier Sterling and Alberto Salas Amaró. Suspension of constitutional guarantees curtailed campaigning.

Supporters of Castro seeking pre-election headlines are blamed for the crash of a Cuban turboprop airliner Saturday night in which 17 persons were killed. One of the three survivors said rebel gunmen commandeered the plane on the flight from Miami, telling the pilot, "This will be in all the newspapers of the world."

Castro's rebels threatened to shoot any of the 10,000 candidates on sight and warned all who voted that they also risked their lives.

They have killed five candidates, including four running for Congress. The have attacked the polling places, destroyed registration lists and warned that the election would be bloody in all six provinces.

The government in turn warned that voting is obligatory for all men and women over 21. It declared it was determined to protect voters and candidates by the use of the 34,000-man army and the 7,500 national police.

Police are manning barricades around polling stations armed with submachineguns.

Police and army squads carried out searches for hidden arms through the election eve.

All the candidates promised to bring peace to Cuba. Each expressed confidence in his election.

Batista ran Cuba from 1933, when he led a group of sergeants in a revolt, until 1944, and again since he overthrew President Carlos Prío Socarrás in 1952. He has promised to hand over his office to the winning candidate when his current four-year term expires Feb. 24.

THE STORY: Paul is trying to burn the evidence that he murdered Katherine's mother, Katherine is trying to stop him, but Katherine, being only 12, is unable to get the burning piece of paper.

Chapter XIII

He said, "You had your chance earlier—down on the beach," and laughed again.

She didn't answer him. She grabbed his arm with both her hands, and dragged down on it with her full weight. The match went out. His arm was starting to give, to come down as much as two, and then, just as she thought she had it within her reach, he kicked her hard across the shins.

She screamed and let go of him at the same time. The paper went back up into the air, and she heard him laugh as she bent down to nurse the broken flesh.

He said calmly, "Maybe it's just as well that you're here. When you see that this page is burned, too, you can stop all this. Do you think anybody would ever believe you?"

"Kneeling there on the floor, her hand on her wounded leg, she was almost overcome with fury; she was not frightened now, as he lowered above her, holding the paper beyond her grasp; and almost without thinking what she was doing she leaned over against his leg, pressing her face into the cloth of his trousers, and in her sharp little teeth going into the flesh, tasted a quick saltiness, and in the same second he lifted his free hand and struck her so hard, that she was knocked back against the chair.

Wild flashes exploded inside her head, and the room wheeled crazily in front of her. Through a haze she saw his hand go to his knee and come away bloody, and for a second she thought he was going to hit her again. But he did not.

He took the book of matches down from the mantel where he had laid it, and lighted a new one. He held the match to a corner of the paper, and in a second the flame took hold.

She made a frantic effort to get hold of herself. He was not looking at her now; he was concentrating on the little triangular flame at the corner of the paper. She forced herself forward on her hands, and the eyes toward him. She could think of only one thing—to bite him again and make him drop the paper. Now that it was burning he could not wave it around so freely without burning himself. He would have to let go of it in order to deal with her. She crept slowly toward him on all fours until she could reach her face out against his leg; then she slipped, and this time sank her teeth into his calf.

She let go immediately and moved back from him a little, looking up at him as he wheeled around toward her. And as she had expected, he let go of the burning paper as he kicked out at her. It did not fall down to her, though, he had sailed it into the depths of the fireplace, and she watched it settle there, still burning faintly, along one side.

She reached the fireplace and stuck her head and shoulders inside. The paper was at the very back. She crawled in farther. She tried to pick up the paper, and burned her fingers.

She turned her hand palm downward and pressed it on the paper. A sickening pain shot up her arm. She thought she was going to faint. But the fire had gone out. She had saved the paper.

Pope John Is Crowned in Ceremonies

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII was crowned today in glittering medieval ceremonies investing him as the 262nd spiritual ruler of the Roman Catholic Church.

A mighty roar went up from some 200,000 persons in the great square of St. Peter's at the climactic moment in the coronation of the successor to Pope Pius XII. Nicola Cardinal Canali, aged 70, president of the College of Cardinals, placed the beehive-shaped tiara of jewel-encrusted gold on the head of the shaver-cropper's son from a little north Italian village.

There were more than four hours of impressive religious rites inside the vast basilica of St. Peter's.

The coronation took place on the same central balcony overlooking the square on which Pope John made his first appearance a week ago today after his election by the College of Cardinals.

All the pomp and ceremony of the Roman Catholic Church were mustered for the coronation rites. But there was humility, too, in the presence of the pontiff's family. Three brothers, a sister and numerous nephews and nieces were present, dressed in black as a sign of mourning. They watched in awe, weeping with emotion, as their kinsman, the former Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli, went through the coronation ceremony.

Through it all the 76-year-old former patriarch of Venice ro-

It wasn't as if it went fatal, being sealed into the fireplace. As soon as anyone noticed that she was missing, they would begin to look for her. A picture rose up before her in the dark, of Amy's face contorted in distress, calling her.

And Aunt Millicent would start to look; even Paul would have to pretend to look for her. They might walk back and forth past it a dozen times, actually within inches of her, and she wouldn't know it. Maybe she wouldn't even be able to make Aunt Millicent hear her.

Of course, the air wouldn't run out! There was the chimney above her; air would come down the chimney. She lifted her face and looked up unable to see anything in the blackness. What was it that she'd hit her head on? Where was the chimney?

Very tentatively, very cautiously, she stretched out her hand; and almost at once it touched something in the air, a foot in front of her face.

She had touched the end of the chain hanging down from the damper. Over and over her mother had said to her: "Be sure you open the damper before you light the fire. If you don't the smoke can't get out. The living room will get all smoked up." And the damper was what she had hit her head against.

She remembered now that there were two chains with wrought-iron letters hanging at the ends — O on one for open, S on the other for shut. She reached out her hand again; and the letter materialized under her fingers; it was an O. She gripped it tightly and tugged on it.

Through the square hole at the far end she could see the blue sky, and inside toward the tip of that tall, straight passage, she could distinguish the red bricks with which the chimney was lined.

She tried to remember the proportions of her figure. Her head still ached, and there was a pain in her hand where she had turned it, but now those went to the back of her mind, submerged in the new flood of hope. She wiggled around until her head was directly under the damper; and then, pushing herself up an inch at a time, she raised herself until her head was just below the opening.

When she felt the iron touching her hair she twisted herself carefully into position and pushed herself up again, inserting her head into the opening as delicately as if it were the mouth of a lion. Her head was too big; it would not go through.

She let herself down, twisted around sideways in the fireplace, hoisted herself, and tried again. This time her head got much farther into the opening; it did not get stuck as it had when she had gotten in as far as her temples. She pushed, and got in another inch. Her ears were caught under the metal now; they were holding her down.

Finally, holding both her ears flat against her head, she gave a last heavy push. Her head went through. One side of her face was scratched by a piece of rough metal. She twisted her body around the right way, and then suddenly she became aware that she had a horrible sensation of hanging there, like criminals hanging in the gallows.

She was so taken up with the terrors of this picture that when she did merely as a reflex, straighten her cramped legs a little, she was startled back to reality by the discovery that her shoulders came through the opening very easily. She was standing almost straight up on the floor of the fireplace by now. She was going to be able to get out after all.

Her stomachs, perched halfway down on her nose, slid off and landed on the top of the damper with a little clink. She could not pick them up.

HIGHLIGHTS IN LIFE OF POPE JOHN XXIII
Born Nov. 25, 1881, in the village of Sotto il Monte, near Bergamo, in northern Italy; Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli was the son of an Italian shaver-cropper. The third of 13 children, he left home (1) at the age of 11 for the seminary. Ordained in 1904 (2), he officiated his first mass in the same year in St. Peter's Basilica. His great love of parish work was first evidenced when, as assistant to the Bishop of Bergamo, 1905-1914, he instituted (3) the then daring innovation of publishing parish news bulletins. Drafted into the Italian army at outbreak of World War I, he served (4) in the medical corps, later as an army chaplain. (4) Plus XI started him on his diplomatic career as apostolic visitor to Bulgaria in 1925. Appointed Nuncio to Paris in December, 1944, he served there in the difficult postwar years. Elevated to the Cardinalate in 1953, he became (5) Patriarch of Venice. On Oct. 28, 1958, Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli took the name of Pope John XXIII, after being elected by the Sacred College of Cardinals to become the 262nd leader (6) of the Roman Catholic Church.

mained serene, often smiling benignly. His voice throughout the long mass and his greetings to the Catholic hierarchy of the world remained clear and resonant.

The crowd began to roar as 84-year-old Cardinal Canali took the crown in his hands and prepared to place it on the pontiff's head. The pontiff adjusted the crown himself and looked solemnly out into the crowd.

The Pope rose slowly and chanted his "urbi et orbi" — the traditional blessing of the pontiff to the City of Rome and the world. The crowd remained silent throughout his recitation.

Western experts can agree on the requirements of a workable inspection arrangement.

If the meeting makes progress, officials indicated, that the United States is prepared to provide the Soviets with some now-secret information about radar and probably other devices which could be used in detecting military mobilization moves, missile and aircraft flights and the like.

The technical meeting may be followed — again depending on its success — by later political negotiations. The powers then would be confronted with specific questions of the location and area of inspection zones to begin putting the proposed system into operation.

The Soviets have said they intend to raise the question of zones at the conference beginning next week. American and Allied negotiators will not agree to deal with such matters at this time, informants here said. Hence, the first round of talks at Geneva may be a wrangle over what should be talked about.

ate Republicans 49-17. With Mike's vote they need only to hold their own in today's contests to have the required 50 majority after Alaska adds its two.

Test readings from around the country showed the Democrats might pick up from 17 to 40 House seats and possibly more. But if the Democratic rocket went only that high, it would fall far short of the 97 seats the party took from the Republicans in 1952. Democrats now outnumber House Republicans 235-200. A majority in the next Congress, with a new seat for Alaska, will be 219.

In hotly contested governor races, Democrats were expected to take a net gain of from one to three in what might become some spectacular trading of states house control by the two parties.

Democratic governors now outnumber Republicans 29-19. Taking the spotlight was New York's battle of the millionaires, the effort of Republican Nelson Rockefeller to take the governorship away from Democratic Averell Harriman.

Rockefeller, a potential bidder for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination if he wins, was given a slight edge over Harriman in final private canvases. On the other hand, GOP Rep. Kenneth B. Keating, sponsored Alaska's first Democratic Frank Hogan in the Senate race, once Rockefeller calls up a Republican tide.

Election Picture at a Glance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Approximately 48 million, or 63 per cent of the estimated eligible voters, are expected to cast ballots today. More than 1,000 candidates are seeking 33 seats in the U.S. Senate, 432 in the House, 32 governorships.

Weather forecast: Sunny and mild in most of the nation, with temperatures ranging from the 50s to the 70s.

Maine held its election Sept. 8, when the Democrats picked up a Senate and a House seat, and Alaska holds its first election Nov. 25. Thus, the new Congress opening in January will have 98 senators, including 62 holdovers, and 430 House members, with 50 needed to control the Senate and 219 the House.

Democrats now control both houses, the Senate 49-47, and the House 235-200, not counting the Maine results. To win back control of Congress, Republicans would have to show a net gain of 3 senators and 10 House members.

Counting Maine and Alaska, 34 governors are being elected this year. Democrats now hold 29 governorships, Republicans 19. Polls close today as early as 4 p.m., EST, in parts of Rhode Island and Tennessee and as late as 11 p.m. on the West Coast.

Singer's Wife Takes Overdose of Pills

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An overdose of sleeping pills followed by a fall from a stretcher has left singer Allan Jones' heirless wife in critical condition.

Police said Mary Florsheim Picking Jones, 38, apparently attempted suicide after an argument with her husband. But Jones denied it.

"There was no suicide intent. It was just an unconscious accident," he said.

Mrs. Jones is heirless to the Florsheim shoe fortune. She and the singer were married last December; the day she divorced actress Irene Harvey, his wife of more than 20 years.

A daughter by a previous marriage, Ellen Picking, 17, told police she believed her mother had taken 12 sleeping pills.

Jones said attendants carrying his wife out of their Westwood home Sunday "dropped her on her head on the sidewalk from a height of four or five feet. Her head split open and there was blood all over everything."

A spokesman for Miller's ambulance service, which transported Mrs. Jones to the UCLA medical center, said she fell only six inches.

Says McClellan Is a Good Candidate

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) —

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) last night was introduced here as "a man who would make a good candidate for President or Vice President two years hence."

This introduction by Dr. Ralph Phelps, president of Ouachita Baptist College here, brought a standing ovation from the 350 persons attending Arkadelphia's first annual Industry Appreciation Day banquet.

And it caused McClellan to remark: "What I've heard here tonight sounds good. Don't forget for the next two years."

In his prepared address, the senior senator continued his scathing attack on the U.S. Supreme Court for its integration decisions, and discussed corrective measures that he said should be taken in the fields of national economy, foreign aid and labor-management relations.

Nobody Unhurt in Pop Bottle Blast

STEPHENS, Ark. (AP) — Jackie Sanders, 14, got herself a bottle of pop from the refrigerator Sunday night, found it to be frozen, and put it in the unlighted kitchen oven to thaw out.

Then she went to church and forgot about it.

Monday morning her grandmother, Mrs. J. T. Milner, began to prepare breakfast and lit the oven.

No one was hurt by the pop bottle blast that followed.
